Scriptural Reflections

At Mt. Sinai the people of Israel declare their readiness to obey the word of God (Ex 19:8). In this reading they hear that word as God gives them the commandments clarifying what is expected of them as God's covenant people. Later God will present Moses with two stone tablets containing these Ten Commandments written out by the hand of God (Ex 24:12).

The first three commandments concentrate on the special bond between God and the people. It should be entirely clear to the people by this time that God cares for them and protects them from harm. God's love for them was most dramatically displayed in the deliverance from slavery in Egypt. In return God expects them to be faithful. The sky above and the earth below are gifts from God; no created thing should be distorted by elevating it to a status that rivals the place God should hold in their hearts. Since they are privileged to know the divine name, they should never use that name in a way that is demeaning or disrespectful. The seventh day of each week should be devoted entirely to recognizing the sovereignty of God. They have the other days of the week to pursue their own interests. The seventh day belongs to the Lord.

The remaining commandments concentrate on the impact devotion to God must have in their relationship with others. This list begins with the pride of place parents have in their lives of their children. The other commandments ensure that others receive the honor and respect that belongs to them as children of God.

The story of Jesus disrupting the Jerusalem temple at Passover time is found in all four Gospels. The synoptic Gospels place the event at the end of Jesus' life. John, on the other hand, places it at the beginning of His ministry. Historically the Synoptics probably have it right but John is interested in theology and not history. For John this shocking and prophetic action of Jesus serves to inaugurate the ministry of Jesus. No longer is the temple a magnificent structure made of monumental stone. From now on the temple is to be found in the body of Christ.

John includes more details than do the Synoptics in describing the cleansing of the temple. The issue, however, is not that of rampant commercialism taking place in the temple. Buying and selling sacrificial animals was perfectly legitimate as was exchanging money to pay the temple tax. The real concern is the total spiritual bankruptcy of the entire temple system. With this prophetic action Jesus removes the boundaries between sacred and secular (see Zec 14:21). This is a zealous action as the disciples will eventually recognize through hindsight. The temple in fact was destroyed in 70 C.E. The Jews had switched their religious center and the presence of God to the synagogue. The Christians, however, saw the locus of God's revelatory presence to be in Jesus himself, specifically as the body of Christ.

Prayer of St. Francis of Assisi

Lord, make us instruments of your peace. Where there is hatred, let us sow love; Where there is injury, pardon; Where there is discord, union; Where there is doubt, faith; Where there is despair, hope; Where there is darkness, light; Where there is sadness, joy; O Divine Master, Grant that we may not so much seek To be consoled as to console, To be understood as to understand, To be loved as to love. For it is in giving that we receive; It is in pardoning that we are pardoned; And it is in dying that we are born to eternal life.
Amen.
